Continuation of 3. NOTE: The specification does not contains for the recited amendment "and does not recognize the C.sub.n.

though applicant argues that newly added claim limitations according to MPEP 2163 must be supported in the specification through express, implicit, or inherent disclosure. Applicant is expected to show where in the specification this specific amendment can be found as express, implicit or inherent. Applicant arguments of supporting the amendments concentrates on where in the specification a support for specific engagement between an antigen and an antibody, however, it does not support the recitation of excluding other compounds.

MPEP 2163 explains the conditions wherein the amendments are considered supported which are:

Rephrasing which is not the case in the instant case because the exclusion is not disclosed in any different way, obvious errors which is not the situation in the instant amendments, inherent function, or theory, which applies in case of devices, and finally, incorporation by reference which is not applicable in the instant situation.
